School children find a frog in bananas

If you want a piece of fruit, be careful when you open it. Schoolchildren near Liverpool, in the UK, found a tiny frog in their bananas!

People thought it was a reed frog. It was the size of a fingernail. The frog travelled an incredible 5000 miles. It came from the Republic of Côte d'Ivoire. This republic is a country in West Africa and is also known as the Ivory Coast. It produces the most cocoa in the world! It also grows fruit, such as bananas and pineapples.

On social media, the school said, "There was a banana drama... today!"

Luckily, the teachers caught the frog. They kept it safe in a damp, warm container. They then phoned the Royal Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. This organization takes care of animals that need help in the UK. RSPCA inspector Anthony Joyner said it's the first time he's collected an escaped frog.

Anthony thanked the people working at the school. He said they looked after the frog well. He told them that the frog is now with a specialist keeper who will figure out exactly what kind of frog it is. Hopefully, the frog will find a good home soon!
