READING (15 points)

Task 1. (1-5) Read the text and choose the correct option.

Transfer your answers onto the answer sheet.

The 32,000–word novella The Time Machine by H.G. Wells, published in 1895, is generally credited with popularizing the idea of time travel by means of a time machine, a vehicle which takes the occupant backward or forward in time. Dozens of sequels and adaptations over the years have further promoted the notion. Indeed, Albert Einstein’s Theory of Special Relativity lays the foundation for the possibility of time travel. So far, no one has demonstrated the ability to travel in time. However, time machines have been constructed, and they do allow glimpses into the past.

The most efficacious time machine currently in existence is the Hubble Telescope, named after the American astronomer Edwin P. Hubble. Its capability to locate distant astronomical targets and lock in on them, permitting their faint light to aggregate on its detectors, allows it to peer far into the past. Light travels 186,000 miles per second. The Hubble Telescope has looked back in time at 10,000 galaxies whose light left them billions of years ago. Therefore, utilizing the telescope as time machine, astronomers are able to contemplate galaxies as they were eons ago.

Although the telescope was launched into space in 1990, its inception was almost a half–century earlier as astronomer Lyman Spitzer, Jr. mulled over the possibility of a large space telescope in a 1946 report, “Astronomical Advantages of an Extra–Terrestrial Observatory.” Because the earth is bathed in its constantly churning atmosphere, earth–based telescopes cannot penetrate deep space; the atmosphere distorts the view. Telescopes were constructed on mountains, but there was still no way to wholly escape the effects of the layers of gases enveloping the earth.

During the 1960s, the Space Race between the then–Soviet Union and the United States was accelerating. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) was established. Funds for space endeavors were abundant, and plans for a large space telescope, by then designated the LST, were underway. The designs called for a 2.4–meter primary telescope mirror which could be transported into space by one of NASA’s rockets. According to National Geographic’s Imaging Space and Time, the resolving power of the deep space telescope would be “equivalent to being able to distinguish the left and right headlights of a car in California seen from New York, or features less than 1/30,000th the size of the full moon. This was at least a tenfold increase over the atmospheric limit.”

One of the primary challenges involved in successfully transporting the telescope into space was protecting the mirror from the jarring vibrations that occur during launch. It was crucial that the mirror be able to withstand the shuttle's vicissitudes as well as the volatile atmospheric conditions found in space. If not, the precise shape of the mirror could be compromised, and its imaging capability significantly weakened.

After the telescope had been launched, astronomers subsequently realized that the primary mirror had not been ground correctly. A lens in the test instrument was about one millimeter askew, which is large by optical standards. In 1993, space-walking astronauts installed corrective lenses which improved the eyesight of the Hubble. In 2009, the corrective lenses themselves were replaced with a supersensitive spectrograph with built-in corrective lenses. The new spectrograph is expected to provide insight into the origins of stars and galaxies.

The successor to Hubble, the James Webb Space Telescope, is expected to be launched in 2014. It will observe only in infrared, so it will complement the Hubble Telescope, which observes in the visible and ultraviolet light ranges.

Hubble currently has the capability to view galaxies that were formed 13.7 billion years ago, long before humans existed, in an area called the Hubble Ultra Deep Field. Astronomers aspire to see beyond the Hubble Ultra Deep Field to a time that is devoid of galaxies, a time before galaxies had formed. If H.G. Wells was onto something in his novella, that time may be close at hand. As one of the characters in the popular work asked, "If Time is really only a fourth dimension of Space, why is it, and why has it always been, regarded as something different? And why cannot we move in Time as we move about in the other dimensions of Space?"

Less than a decade after Wells' novella, Einstein's Special Theory Relativity seemed to concur with Wells' character by proposing that traveling through space at the speed of light would alter time by causing it to dilate, raising the possibility of not merely glimpsing the past, but perhaps traveling to it.

- 1) Which statement corresponds to one of the ideas mentioned at the beginning of the passage?
 - A. The concept of time travel is based purely on the H.G. Wells novella.
 - B. The concept of time travel is based on both scientific work and literature.
 - C. Time travel has absolutely no connection to reality.
 - D. Time travel has become a reality in 1966.
- 2) Earth-based telescopes...
 - A. can easily get access to far-away galaxies.
 - B. were originally created by Lyman Spitzer, and they could penetrate deep space with no limitations.
 - C. were influenced by the layers of gases surrounding the earth.
 - D. were created in 1895.

- 3) The process of transporting the telescope into space is complicated and may lead to ...
- A. lower image quality.
 - B. substantial damage to the telescope antennas.
 - C. complete shut off of the microcomputer.
 - D. astronauts' injuries.
- 4) The James Webb Space Telescope ...
- A. is a complete copy of the Hubble Telescope.
 - B. has more features in addition to observing in the visible and ultraviolet light ranges.
 - C. is an advanced copy of the Hubble Telescope without infrared mirror.
 - D. is different from the Hubble Telescope.
- 5) Astronomers are interested in ...
- A. the galaxies of 2 billion years ago.
 - B. creating a time machine based on Albert Einstein's description.
 - C. re-reading the novella by H.G. Wells.
 - D. the time before galaxies.

Task 2. (6-10) Find in the text expressions that correspond to the following definitions. Transfer your answers onto the answer sheet.

- 6) quick looks at something
- 7) thought about something for a long time and in a careful manner
- 8) attempts to achieve something
- 9) not at the right level or not straight
- 10) open or become wider

VOCABULARY (20 points)

Task 1. For items 1 — 5, choose one word that fits all three sentences. Transfer your answers onto the answer sheet.

- 1) Which statement corresponds to one of the ideas at the beginning of the passage?
 - A. Humanity has not achieved anything close to a time machine.
 - B. The Hubble Telescope can only look into 100 years ago.

- C. There is a device that can be considered a time machine.
 - D. Edwin P. Hubble failed to create anything close to a time machine.
- 2) In the 1960s funds available for space exploration, and ultimately creating a telescope, were ...
- A. limited.
 - B. substantial.
 - C. fixed.
 - D. not promising.
- 3) In 1993 and 2009 the telescope ...
- A. was technologically improved by the astronauts.
 - B. sent in the pictures of the highest resolution.
 - C. provided little information compared to the expectations.
 - D. was checked and determined efficient.
- 4) The Hubble Ultra Deep Field is ...
- A. 2 billion years old and cannot be physically reached by humans.
 - B. a set of galaxies that were formed more than 13 billion years ago.
 - C. not visible through the Hubble Telescope.
 - D. what people hope to be able to see in 10 years.
- 5) The Special Theory Relativity seemed to ...
- A. have no connection with H.G. Wells novella.
 - B. have no realistic basis.
 - C. explain the lack of possibility of a time machine.
 - D. echo the ideas expressed in H.G. Wells novella.
